With the theme “Let Information Drive Modernization, Speed Up the Construction of Digital China”, the first Digital China Summit ran from April 22 to 24 in Fuzhou, East China’s Fujian province.

There are many business leaders delivered speeches at the summit. For example, Ma Yun, Ma Huateng, Liu Qiangdong etc., and they are the leader of a big company in China.

“China needs a large number of big and super companies that surpass BAT, with key technologies to make the country great”, Ma Yun, founder of Alibaba Group Holding, said, “China also needs a digital economy law as an upgrade of e-commerce of law, which is under discussion.”

Ma Huateng, chairman and CEO of Tencent Holding, spoken that China require to grasp own key technologies, and will not be controlled by others.

“Companies need to obtain own intellectual property rights to improve competitiveness in the global arena”, said by Liu Qiangdong, board chairman and CEO of JD.com.

With the development of informatization and digitalization, developing key technologies is an unshirkable responsibility for big companies and countries. Every country compete to develop key technologies, for example artificial intelligence, cloud computing and big data. Which country has mastered advanced technology, and the country grasped the initiative of development. China has invested heavily in key technologies. I believe that China will obtain own many advanced technologies in the future.
